DECLASS EXCISE Sec. 1.4 034

This afternoon I saw Paul Arnold, of the United Aircraft Corporation, who presented me with a well prepared brochure on the company's activities. I happened to notice it has 40,000 employees. When I was first familiar with it, and Rentschler had become a friend, it was a struggling young organization with a couple of hundred people working for it. Two of the three talented Rentschler brothers are now dead.

The London papers today gave some details about expense allowances for British Ambassadors in Washington, Paris, and New York. In Washington, David Ormsby-Gore will have his allowance increased by £ 32 a week, to £ 33,950; Bob Dickson, in Paris, will have a £ 12 a week rise to £ 23,934; on the other hand, Pat Dean, the Ambassador at UNO, must take a £ 20 a week cut to £ 13,975. These three Ambassadors each get a salary of £ 7,015. The figures are interesting, because similar allowances for the U.S. ~~Ambassador in London are about~~ $16,000 a year.

Jessie Bruce and Stash Radziwill came to lunch. I had a talk with Jessie beforehand.

[redacted] She has applied for a job in the American Embassy at Paris. I feel distressed over her position, as I have always been devoted to her. In addition, she is, without question, one of the most beautiful and charming young women I have ever met.
